

How American Health Care Stacks Up

Supporters of universal, government-run health care believe the U.S. should establish a system like those found in Canada, Great Britain and the other European nations that have socialized medicine. The data, however, show that American health care is superior to that available in those countries.

